About the Department of Japanese and Asian Studies

In April 2015, the Graduate School of Humanities and Social Sciences at Saitama University (SU) launched a new graduate-level Department of Japanese and Asian Studies (Department). Contemporary society is clearly witnessing a transformation toward a knowledge-based society wherein new knowledge, information, and technology provide a vital foundation for human action in various political, economic, and social arenas. At the same time, advancing globalization is stimulating a remarkable upsurge in the international mobility of people, goods, and capital, thereby further promoting the interdependence of nations. Asia is one of the most culturally and economically dynamic regions of this increasingly interdependent global society, a fact that underscores the importance of research and education that deepens our understanding of this part of the world. In accordance with these trends, the Graduate School of Humanities and Social Sciences aims to cultivate graduates who are well suited to serve as intellectual leaders in this knowledge-based global society; moreover, it is making the study of Asia a central component of this initiative.

Master's Programs Overview

In response to the requirements of this knowledge-based globalizing society, the university provides new learning opportunities for a broad mix of Japanese students, international students, and working adults. One such innovation addresses the needs of graduate students who wish to study the economy and culture of Japan and Asia in English by offering two programs wherein one can earn a master's degree entirely in English: the Master of Economics (MEcon) Program in Japanese and Asian Economy and Management and the Master of Arts (MA) Program in Japanese and Asian Culture. All classwork and thesis supervision in these two programs are usually conducted in English. Students wishing to begin or continue Japanese language studies after their entrance into the university are encouraged to do so (we offer both beginning and advanced Japanese language instruction), but language study is not compulsory.

The two programs offer students the options to pursue a degree with a disciplinary focus either in economics and business or in the liberal arts. This provides them with a broad, in-depth study of Japanese and Asian economies, management, history, and culture from a global or multicultural perspective. Students will enroll in either the MEcon or the MA program, but they can choose classes from either program in order to obtain an interdisciplinary perspective covering both the social sciences and humanities. Graduates of either the liberal arts, economics, or business options will be well prepared to fill professional positions in international organizations or in industries, governments, non-profit organizations, or management sectors in either Japan or their home country.

Note that this application guideline is for the MEcon program. The MEcon program, comprising classes on the Japanese and Asian economy, society, and management, rests on the accumulated store of years of fieldwork by numerous faculty who excelled in systems design and policy recommendation, and were committed to creating new socioeconomic models for a sustainable Asia. Students enrolled in this program will master theories and methods useful for solving economic problems and graduate with the ability to greatly contribute to the further development of their home societies and of Asia in general.

The MA program in Japanese and Asian Culture offers students an interdisciplinary selection of classes and thesis supervision covering Japanese and Asian history, literature, material culture, media, contemporary art, traditional performing arts, and other cultural studies topics. Under the direction of leading scholars, the program provides successful applicants with an ideal forum through which to hone their analytical skills and enhance their ability to comprehend the multiple cultural and historical perspectives characterizing today's global society, and thus will leave graduates well prepared to pursue their professional goals in Japan or abroad.

We welcome motivated students from all over the world and look forward to your application.

Scholarship

I Government Scholarship

1. Japan Student Services Organization (JASSO) Scholarship

<https://www.jasso.go.jp/en/index.html>

(1) Research Program for the MEXT Honor Scholarship for Privately Financed International Students

The Japan Student Services Organization (JASSO) offers the Reservation Program for the MEXT Honors Scholarship for Privately Financed International Students (hereafter “Reservation Program for Honors Scholarship”) to students who attend a university or other institutions of higher education in Japan. In conjunction with this scholarship, JASSO sponsors a reservation program that sets aside scholarships for privately financed international students who enroll in a graduate school in Japan directly from overseas (i.e., applicants do not have to visit Japan before enrollment).

Privately financed international students who enroll in SU’s or the MEcon Program MEET these criteria, although a scholarship is not always guaranteed.

The Reservation Program for Honors Scholarship (graduate level) is paid monthly in the amount determined for that Japanese school year (April-March). This amount is subject to change each year.

After a scholarship has been reserved for an applicant, it is awarded for a certain period based on the time that the applicant enrolls in a Japanese graduate school. For students enrolled in the MEcon Program in October 2026, the duration of the scholarship is six months, from October 2026 to March 2027. Students need to compete for the MEXT (regular) Honors Scholarships or other scholarships for privately financed international students during the subsequent period.

All applications must be processed through SU. Direct applications by students will not be accepted. The application for the Reservation Program for Honors Scholarship must be made after matriculation.

[Important Points on Other Scholarships Related to the Reservation Program for Honors Scholarship]

The Reservation Program for Honors Scholarship cannot be awarded to students scheduled to receive one of the government or non-government/private scholarships.

(2) MEXT Honors Scholarship for Privately Financed International Students

Privately financed international students studying at SU are eligible to apply for the MEXT Honors Scholarship offered by JASSO. Applications for the scholarship should be made through SU. Please note that the JASSO scholarship is highly competitive.

2. Foreign Government Scholarships

Foreign government scholarships are available for those who are dispatched to Japan to study by the government of their home country. Please inquire about the relevant authority in your country for further details.

II MEcon Program Scholarships

1. Economics Society Scholarship

The Economics Society of Saitama University offers up to two international students enrolled in the MEcon program a scholarship covering the amount of the MEcon program tuition fees (in effect, a tuition waiver) for the two years of the course with regard to continued excellent academic performance.

- You can apply for this Scholarship only if you apply for a tuition fee exemption during enrollement process. Once you have paid your tuition, you cannot request an exemption for that.
- You have to apply for a tuition fee exemption every six months or a year after your enrollment. If you forget to do that, you will not be awarded the scholarship. Please note that we will not remind you of the application deadline.
- If you have any questions regarding a tuition fee exemption, please ask the Scholarship Support Section of the Student Support Division.

2. Partial Scholarship

The Economics Society offers 200,000 yen to every first-year international student who matriculates in the MEcon program and moves to Japan from abroad, but only if they do not receive any support from any other scholarship covering their travel expenses.

III Non-Government and Private Scholarship

Every year, approximately 30 private organizations award scholarships to students. Although both the number of recipients and the amount paid are limited, we proactively advertise and recommend international students for these private scholarships.

Housing

International House

The International House is a quality housing complex for international students, researchers, faculty, and administrative staff of SU that aims to promote multicultural exchanges and mutual understanding. The commuting time to SU is five minutes on foot. The International House has furnished two rooms, family rooms, and single rooms with Internet connections.

Applications to stay in the International House are accepted in July (moving in October) and January (moving in April). Those wishing to move into the International House should forward their applications to the Office of International Affairs. Please understand that because the number of rooms is limited, an application does not guarantee a room in the facility. The maximum allowed period of residency is one year.

As of 2025, international students with Japanese government (Monbukagakusho: MEXT) or foreign government scholarships will be given priority in their housing applications for the International House.
